BY OUR EXPORTS OF SPECIE. We Have Shipped Over $45,000,000 of Gold This Year and do Not Feel the Loss Yet, Though we May Later—The Movement Drawing to an End.

The exports of gold from the port of New Tork so far this year foot up $45,000,000, and it is certain that at least $1,000,000 more will go out by to-morrow's steamer. A larger amount than that may be shipped, but those who are engaged in the business of transferring the specie to Europe were not certain last night of being able to make the operations which they manifestly had in mind. Wall street is gradually beginning to comprehend the nature of the recent shipments of specie, and it is also beginning to theorize as to their effect upon our own money market a few months hence when, according to precedent, the entire circulation of the country will be actively emilored in connection with the movement of the wheat and then the cotton crops.

One phase of the gold shipments which Wall street has had difficulty in understanding is the price which the Bank of England pays for gold coin and bullion, and which the Bank of France and the Imperial Bank of Germany have paid indirectly by allowing shippers interest on the gold the moment it is cleared from this side. Many people have been unable from this side. Many people have been unable to reconcile that circumstance with the fact that the gold goes forward in payment of a debit trade balance. "If we owe the money," they ask, "why should the leading foreign banks pay a premium for it?" overlook one thing, namely, that it possible to force the payment of a debt. or perhaps more accurately speaking in this something from the face of the obligation.
That is practically what the Bank of England has done in raising its price for gold metal and foreign coin from 76s, 4Md, per ounce to 76s, 6Md, per ounce, which has been its selling price for gold bullion. The Bank of England has two ways of attracting money. by raising the rate of interest; and to do that it not only fixes its own minimum rate of discount at figures which its Governors believe will attract money to London, but the Bank occasionally manipulates the open money market by borrowing money on pledge of consols with the view of controlling the outside supply of loanable funds. Its other methed is the one it has resorted to now that is, to advance its price for gold bullion. The effect of this last upon our market for sterling exchange is easily explained. If gold is worth four cents an ounce more in Londo than in New York, it is clear that the banker here can sell his own sight draft on London for something less than he could if gold were worth the same in both markets. The successive advances which the Bank of England has made recently in its price for bullion has lowered the price at which sight sterling must be sold in this market, in order to ship specie against it at a profit, from something over $4.19 to the pound to $4.97 %. The advantage to remitters is obvious. And it is with the view of stimulating remittances that the Bank of England has adopted its present policy. Herotofore foreign bankers have been con tent to allow balances to accrue to their credit on this side, either because the money could be loaned to advantage or used in buying grain and cotton futures. But with the finances of and cotton futures. But with the Inances of all Europe disturted and every one engaged in the banking business over there desirious of strengthening reserves, their correspondents on this side have been instructed to sell all the sight bills they could market and ship the gold necessary to cover them. The Bank of England is not a party to these transactions, except that its price for bullion attracts the gold to its vaults as fast as it arrives in Lon-gold to its vaults as fast as it arrives in London.

One reason that the correspondents of foreign lankers here have at times been worried atout the demands made upon them for the other side is that they have been afraid they could not sell their bills fast enough to meet those demands. It should be understood that there is aways a large amount of foreign capital in this city, the bulk of which is employed in the loan market, and in case bills could not te sold to awandange that capital, at least a part of it, would have to be converted into gold and shipped. That has been done to an extent. It is understood that one banking bouse that has been a heavy shipper was compelled last week, owing to the slow market for bills, to call in $1,500,010 which it had loaned out convert it into gold, and ship it.

There is a growing impression in Wall street that the shipments are about at an end. It is based upon a number of circumstances. The first shipments were made to Berlin, and it is now several weeks since any gold was consigned to that centre. Farls also received a large part of the early shipments. Recently an the gold has gone to London, but all of it has not remained there, a little having been forwarded to Paris. It would supear, therefore, that Berlin and Paris had obtained from his all the gold they are entitled to while London continues to coax it from us principally to strengthen the reserves of the Bauk of Ingland and of the joint stock.

from his all the gold they are entitled to while London continues to coax it from his principally to strengthen the reserves of the Bank of Lugiand and of the joint stock banks. The embara-sment of the Barings directed attention to the very small reserve kept by all of the English banks. Since then there has been pepular agitation on the subject that has aroused a strong public opinion in favor of larger reserves. The Bank of England has responded to the demand, and will doubtless be applianted by Englishmen for doing se.

It is generally understood that a great deal of the gold which has been shipped has been required to replace withdrawais by Hussia of the gold which has been shipped has been required to replace withdrawais by Hussia of the gold which has been time the returns of the Government banks at those centres show that they have been materially strengthened by the specie they have received from us. For instance, the Bank of England has gained nearly 16,000,000 in specie the last two weeks. The Bank of England has gained nearly 16,000,000 in specie the last two weeks. The Bank of France has gained over $12,000,000 in four weeks, and the imperial Bank of Germany has gained over $2,500,000 the last two weeks. The three hate gained a total of over $17,500,000 in gold. In addition there are $12,000,000 mow in transit to London.

These changes have exerted a agiming influence upon European markots which has been reflected to an extent in our market for securifies in larger buying orders from London. Another circumstance that counts against a continuance of the shipments is the weakness of the markst for sterling exchange, indicating a failing off in the demand, which is equivalent to saying that our debt to Europe has been rereptibly diminished, or else those who wo due balance are not readily tempted into paying it. At the close of business to-day ones thought of the single shipment. As $1,000,000 was sense and in the facts, jumped to cover exchange sold, but lowarded in settlement of credits that have mat that the Fank of England had again advanced its price for buillou. So far as could be learned none of the foreign banking houses was advised of such an advance, nor did any of them credit the report.

The idea was advanced by one banker that the Fank of England would not seek to influence shipments from this side after to-morrow, for the reason that later shipments would not reach London in time to figure in the semi-annual statement of the Bank, which is made up on June 2. As bearing upon the future of the exchange market. It is to be noted that 121 boat loads of wheat, or nearly 1,000,900 bushels, have been taken at the four leading Atlantic ports the last two days for export. The readoncy of the money market at London is how downward, whereas our market it lough easy so far as call loans are concerned is very stiff for time loans and commercial, paper. These changes in the two markets will, together with larger exports of breadactoffs which so we will to check the outward movement of specie.

The question which is now coming to the front in financial circlos relates to the probable condition of our money market during the summer months, and more especially in the fall, when the crops are being moved. We shall have lest when esturday's steamers have sailed nearly $20,000,000, and we have added $41,000,000 of our forculating medium. But as commercial with last fall we have gained by the product of our gold mines. Which averages $22,50,000 per month, at least $20,000,000, and we have added $41,000,000 of the country than there was when the crops were moved last fail. Besides, fair progress is being made by the Treasury Department in setting its subsidiary slives in circulation. It was perforted from Washington yesterday that the department had allieds shipped between $10,000 and $1000 of the country than there was when the crops were moved last fail. Besides, when the crops were moved last fail. Besides, when the crops were moved last fail. Besides, when the crops were moved last fail. He leader Treasury notes

if Chicago speculators do not interfere with the export movement it is difficult to see how European countries can avoid paying us for what they will need to eat. A fairly active money market is to be desired, since it will tend to curb wild speculation on the long side of the grain market.

GOLD COING TO RUSSIA.

The Demand from that Country Still Con tinues-Argentine Finances. Copyright, 18th by Tau Sun Princing and Publish London, May 21.—The Russian demand for gold still continues, and £1,000,000 will be shipped to-morrow and £500,000 more will follow on Saturday or Monday. These amounts will not come out of the Bank of England, but have been collected by the Rothschilds in their own vaults as the gold arrived from abroad. The Bank of England is making extraordinary efforts to attract some of the gold imports to its coffers and has raised its buying price for foreign gold coin three times within the past formight, each time a half penny an ounce. The Joint Stock Banks are also trying o increase their cash surpluses in preparation for the new form of quarterly statements.

Stocks have generally been weak to-day and those of the English railways particularly so. Brighton " declined from 145 to 141%. At the last settlement the price was 147 and a month ago 155. Portuguese bonds are 2 per cent. down. and the monetary crisis in this country is now aggravated by the disappearance of small bank notes from circulation. while large ones are difficult to change. The money changers are advertising in the Lisbon newspapers for gold and silver. In Buenos Ayres measures introduced re-premium, which has advanced to 278 per cent, Gold to the amount of £30,000 was withdrawn from the Bank of England to day for Buence Ayrea. The Paris Eclais contains to-day an interview with officials in which it is estimated that France will require from present indications of the growing crop about 7,000,000 quarters of foreign wheat. The weather in England and this was made necessary by the order making $750 the minimum salary for teachers who have served tourteen years. Mayor Grant said that this order should apply only to those who were especially deserving.

Mr. Lummis explained that the advance had been given to 352 of such teachers out of 355, and he added that the length of service of these teachers was proof enough that they were deserving. The matter was finally laid over.

President Gallup of the Park Beard asked that $70,000 be raised by the sale of bonds to build a retaining wall for filverside Park between Soventy-ninth and Eighty-third streets. Nobody had ever heard of the Mark Twait Nineteenth Century Mission before this adver-tisement was published, but about 250 people went to the Academy last night to find out about it. It was 9 o'clock before anybody appeared on the stage.

When this body came he proved to be a solemn-looking young man about the size of Boy Revivalist Harrison. He kept his mouth open when he wasn't talking. His appearance made some stir, for he wore a gown like a monk's, only white. It had a sort of cape, and was trimmed around the edges with silver embroldery.

The young man sat down in a chair with a Gothic back and clasped his hands, while the band played operatio airs. Then he came to the footlights and held up his hand for silence There was plenty of it. The audience looked at him curiously. He said:

I will tell you. I am sorry to announce that there has been some misunder-standing, and none of the apeakers announced for to-night will be present. It gives me great pleasure to open this service to-night with a song by the Mark Twain Nineteenth Century Mission Colored Quartet."

This was all the young man said. He sat down in the pulpit chair again and four col-ored men came out and sang a song with the refrain:

Hard trials for them, two,

The wondering audience laughed, and would have cried "Encore," but the young man in the gown held up his hand and announced that the next pieces on the programme were some musical specialties. He did not name the performers, but they were the Murray Brothers. Harry Foresman, and Ida Helle Cooley. Then the young man came to the footlights and said:

"I am afraid we can't have an opening tonight, and i forbid the newscapers to say that this is our opening. I invite you to Behr Hail on Wednesday night, and well open then, Now we will take a collection. It is a good cause, ladies and gentlemen.

A man passed a Derby hat and collected about $3 in nickels and cents. Everybody looked exceedingly mystified, and there was much quiet laughter everywhere. A crayon caricaturist appeared and drew one pieture.

caricaturist appeared and drew one picture. Then the young man came out without his gown and said good night.

The 200 people filed out of the house laughing and wondering why this was called the Mark Twain Mission. The Sun reporter asked the young man of the white gown.

This young man said that the President of the mission was A. A. Kirk of Philadeichia. The young man himself was superintendent. He is L. O. Williams, and lives at 352 West Nusteenth sirset. He is L. O. Williams, and lives at 352 West Nineteenth street.

"Everybody knows me," he said, "I am 'the hoy avangelist' and helped Mr. Harrison, 'the boy preacher,' for three years, but I'm not with him any more. I'm with the mission now, Mr. Kirk is rich, and he's paying all the expenses."

When asked what Mark Twain had to do with the mission, he said:
"Nothing at all, only Mr. Kirk knows him."
As to the gown he wore, the "boy evangelist" said:

"This is the gown Mr. Kirk wore when he graduated at Equisan College in Galveston. The college is non-westarian. Good night."

Mr. Williams paid down $300 in advance for the use of the hall last night. He also guaranteed Ward Elingley, the entertainment agent, about $150 for the singers and performers.

The shot frightened the burgiar, and with one leap he reached the window and jumped out.

The Jersey City pelice arrested two men as uspicious characters. The men told the police that the burgiaries had been committed by a man named Emil Harold, and yesterday Detective Clos of Jursey City arrested Harold in the Kingston House at 4 East Broadway. At the Tombs Police Court Justice Taintor held the man until Mr. O'Nelli can get here from Jersey City and identify him. WONDERFUL MARK TWAIN MISSION. STORMY DAY IN THE COURT. RECORDER SMYTH DROPS THUNDER-

BOLTS ON MR. NICOLL'S ASSISTANT. Mr. Townsend Says that He Won't Come to Part I. Again Until the Recorder Apologisco-Mr. Nicoll Solisitous About the Recorder's Painful Foot.

Several cases before Recorder Smyth in the General Sessions had been adjourned yesterday, and six jurors had been called and seated in the case of Henry E. Hopkins, grand largeny, when Assistant District Attorney Townsend told the Recorder that he could not proceed with the trial, because an important witness was absent. Lawyer Abbett, Hopkina's counsel, said that he would consent to the adjournment. Thereupon the Recorder said.

Gentlemen of the jury, after getting to this arrived at the conclusion that he has not got the witnesses necessary to prove his case court. Even an ordinary law clerk would be required to know whether his witnesses were on hand before a case went to trial. The defendant's counsel has kindly consented to adjourn the case, and, therefore, the case stands adjourned."

But the trouble did not end there. Mr. Townsend was not ready to proceed with any other case just then. He sent down to Part III. to borrow a case, but could not get one. Recorder Smyth looked at the calendar. pointing to the case of John Martin and John McDonald, indicted for burglary, he said: Why do you not try this case if you have no

McDonald, indicted for burglary, he said:

"Why do you not try this case if you have no other case ready?"

Thereupon Lawyer Coleman, counsel for the defendants, said that he had been vainty endeavoring for some time to get his clients tried, but could not.

Recorder Smyth asked Mr. Townsend said that he was not, as his winesses hadn't appeared. The licecorder told him that it was the duty of an Assistant District Autorney to be ready in every case that was upon the calendar and to know that all his witnesses were in court at the opening of the sourt.

"As there has evidently been a failure on the partofthe recopic to give these men a trial within a reasonable time, and as the District Attorney announces, afer repeated adjournments, that he is not ready to try this case, "said the Recorder." I will discharge the defendants on their own recognizances. When the District Attorney is ready to try them, they can be rearrested and tried. I direct you. Mr. Clerk, to make an entry in your minutes as to the rescon for the discharge of those defendants. It is the duty of the District Attorney to have business re-dy for this Court, and I propose to see that he has it ready, if I can do anything in that direction."

is the duty of the District Attorney to have business red by for this Court, and I propose to see that he has it ready, if I can do anything in that direction."

Mr. Townsend moved the ease of John Pierce, charged with obtaining money by false pretences. A jury was sworn and the complainant was examined and cross-examined. Then Mr. Tewnsend told the Recorder that he would have to ask for an adjournment on account of the absence of a material witness.

"This, gentlemen of the jury," said Recorder Smyth. "seems to me to be trifling with the dignity of the Court and a wasting of the public time and money. I do not propose to compel you to submit to this, as business men, nor to submit to it myself, as a public servant. I would not, under the same circumstances, unless it appeared to be absolutely pecessary in the interest of justice, permit a defendant to adjourn a case in this way, after a trial was begun, and I will not permit the representative of the people to do so. In view of the apparent inability of the people to make out their case by proper testimony. I advise you to acquit the defendant." The jury acquitted Pierce. But another indictment was pending against him, and he was remanded. Then the Court took a recess, and after recess i two cases were ready for trial, and the Court sat until both cases were disposed of.

Late in the afternoon it was rumored that Assistant District Attorney in charge of a calendar in either part of the General Seasions to find out whether his witnesses are present before he calls a case for trial. I am not aware whether Mr. Townsend took that course that should be pursued, it is very unfortunate that this misunderstanding between the Court and Mr. Townsend should have occurred in the first case; but, in the seconi case. I don't think that Mr. Townsend should have occurred in the first case; but, in the seconi case. I don't think that Mr. Townsend was to blame, was waiting centered court. Whatever

I don't think that Mr. Townsend was to blame, because just after the acquittul of the delendant the witness for whom Mr. Townsend was waiting entered court. Whatever fault there was in the matter certainly should be attributed to the witness, who did not respend to the subprens at the proper time. If any punishment was to be imposed it certainly should be imposed upon the witness, and no reflection should be cast upon Mr. Townsend, France of the Recorder's and no reflection should be cast upon Mr. Townsend. Every one of the Recorder's friends is anxious that he should have his foot attended to. He is suffering exoruciating agony every day on the bench from some affection of one of his feet, and, under the circumstances, it is not to be wondered at that he should be somewhat irritable."

Recorder Smyth suffered for several months with an enlargement of the joint of his left foot, but his foot resumed its normal condition nearly two weeks ago. He worked steadily.

foot, but his foot resumed its normal condition nearly two weeks ago. He worked steadily, irrespective of the foot.

Assistant District Attorney Townsend said last evening that he had written to Mr. Nicoli, saying that he would not appear in Part I. of the General Sessions to-day, and that he will not prosecute before the Recorder again until the Recorder neologizes to him. Mr. Townsend says that it was his duty to try cases, not to subport witnesses, and that his record will compare favorably with that of any other of Mr. Nicoll's assistants.

AN APPEAL FROM JUDGE CARPENTER.

Judge Nelson Takes a Case Out of His Hands and Reverses His Decision. Boston, May 21.-Judge Carpenter figured in another sensational court scene to-day, and the result was that a case, in which it was alleged that he had made an unjust decision. was taken from him by Judge Nelson of the United States District Court, and a virtual reversal of judgment followed. The trouble arose over a fine which Judge

The trouble arose over a fine which Judge Carpenter imposed upon Thomas Farrell, second mate of the bark S. R. Lyman of Portland, who was accused of simple assault while the bark was off the coast of South America.

The prisoner, who was anxious to start on another trip, plended nolo contenders by advice of his counsel, Mr. Boardman Hall, who understood that the fine would be a nominal one, but to the amazement of Mr. Hall Judge Carpenter fined Farrell $50.

Mr. Hall then had his client withdraw his plea, and asked the Court to hear some evidence, which the Court refused. Lawyer Hall then went to Judge Nelson, explained the case, and said that there was no record of such a fine for such a trivial offence. Judge Nelson agreed with him, and ordered the case tried before him at 2 o clock.

District Attorner Allen was ordered to issue a summary process. Assistant District Attorney Marshall thought that the previous process was all that the defendant was entitled to, but the Judge said that if he didn't bring the process he would let the man go on his own recognizance.

District Attorney Allen asked for a bench warrant, and it was promptly refused. He then refused to proceed with the trial of the case, and Judge Nelson's action in taking is case from his colleague's hands is unprecedented.
